OBSERVE THE HORSE ON TOP OF BUILDING.

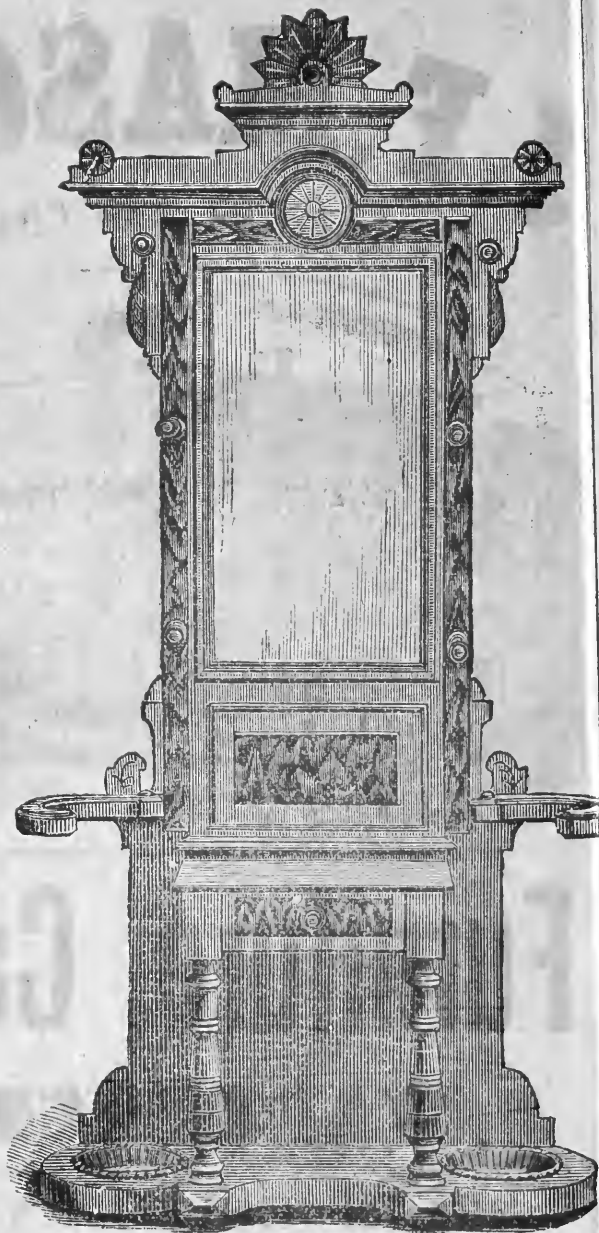

Le Sage, in his preface to Gil Blas tells of two scholars traveling to Salamanca on foot, who about mid-day retired to a shady place off the roadside to refresh themselves.

A large flat stone embedded in the earth served the purpose of a table. Clearing away a space for their accommodation, they were greatly surprised to see some deep cut letters which read: "Here lieth the soul of the Licentiate Pedro."

One of the scholars laughed heartily at what he considered such a stupid blunder, and having concluded his meal, he arose to depart. The other remained. Considering the singularity of the inscription, he concluded to pursue its meaning; so, using his clasp-knife, he dug around the stone, and after much effort removed it from its bed. A leather bag, containing many gold pieces and the following letter met his view.

"These riches have been acquired at the expense of my soul. Whoever has the wit to interpret the inscription is entitled to the wealth."

Reader you will, after perusing this book, resemble one of the scholars. Be influenced by the example of the wise one. Come to JOHN F. MASON to make your purchases of Furniture, Carpets, Oil Cloths, etc., etc.

This marble-top Stand is large and very stylish. Its panels are of French burls, highly polished, standing out boldly on a framing constructed of the best black walnut, thoroughly seasoned.

The cost of this beautiful piece of Furniture is only $18.00.

INTRODUCTORY.

I am induced again to present you with an entirely new issue of my Illustrated Catalogue and Price List of Furniture. While retaining all that is staple of my former designs, I have added many new and desirable patterns which will meet your eye in the following pages, and I hope will also meet your approval.

No effort on my part, which an active experience of thirty-five years has rendered almost absolute, will be left untried to secure to my patrons goods that will, as heretofore, take rank in the households of the prudent rich and the careful poor. Human ingenuity in devising mechanical contrivances to lighten labor and facilitate the production of household furniture, has perhaps, conferred a greater boon on mankind than has intellectual effort in any other direction.

The mechanic or farm laborer of to-day has, if he fortunately furnished his home from my establishment, the pleasing satisfaction of knowing that his home is more beautiful, attractive and convenient in all that ministers to ease and comfort, than the households of the wealthy of a former period.

My department of Carpets and Oil Cloths is replete with every variety that cultured taste will require. Our manufacturers deserve our gratitude in turning away from harsh, angular and uncouth designs to follow nature as she displays herself in flower, leaf and branch. I now commit this book to your kind consideration, with the assurance on my part that it is strictly faithful in all its statements.

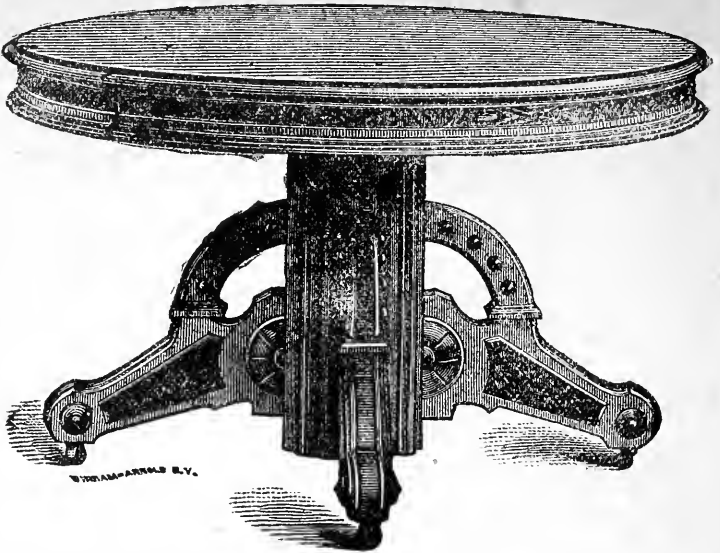

In conclusion I would state, that any deviation in prices that a falling market would allow will be cheerfully deducted from present prices as now published.

Yours respectfully,

March, 1881

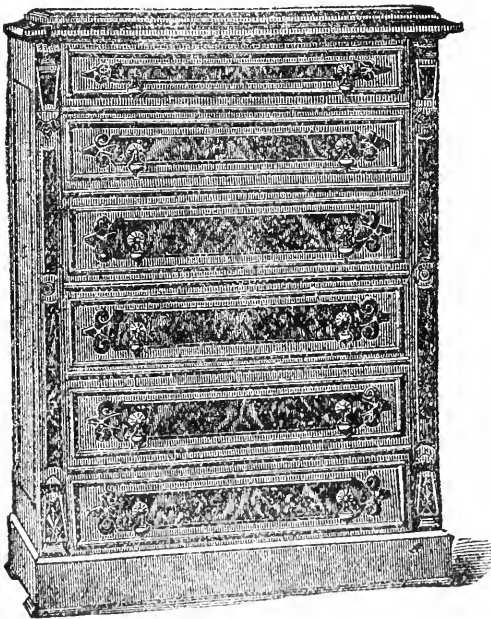

JOHN F. MASON.

The best and about the only way to get even with a treacherous mule is to take his shoes off, lead him on to smooth ice, and then blackguard him. He dare not indulge his natural propensity, and the vexation of spirit exhibited in his intelligent countenance will in some measure compensate for his former agility.

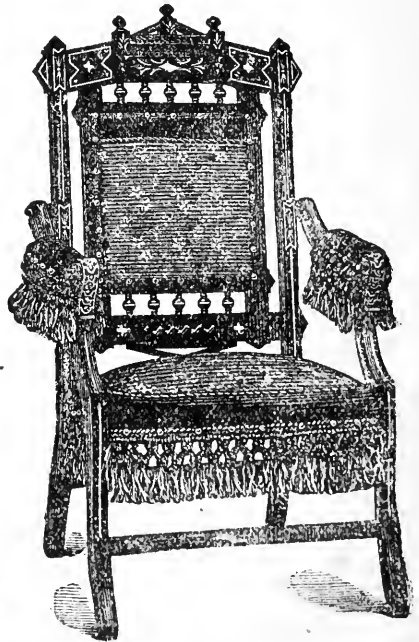

These Extension Tables extend 6, 8, 10 and 12 feet; they run smooth on slides of the most approved kind, and are never liable to get out of order.

The tables to which this cut refers are as perfect in construction and beautiful of appearance as the most skillful labor on the best material can produce. Price from $1.75 to $2.25 per foot.

This Chiffonier is a very desirable article and costs only $22.00.

We have them with desk in the middle drawer, which makes a very convenient secretary.

A large assortment of Fancy Folding Chairs in Brussels, Velvet, Wilton and Raw Silk coverings. Prices vary according to style, covering, &c. This Chair is $9.50.

This remarkable handsome Bedstead and Dressing Case complete, Glass, Marble and Fancy Pulls for $40.00. An examination of this suit will convince you that it is superior in construction and finish to any offered elsewhere for even more money.

The difference in shape, name and style of the Parlor Suits in my ware-rooms preclude the possibility of illustration; they are comprised of Marie Antionette, Queen Ann, East Lake, Occidental, and every new and worthy contribution that art in this direction can devise. The prices range from $45 to $250. I would here, say, that it may be a matter of regret if you purchase elsewhere without calling on the old and trustworthy establishment corner Myrtle Avenue and Bridge Street.

It is best not to skate into airholes; most of them are filled with water and are exceedingly damp.

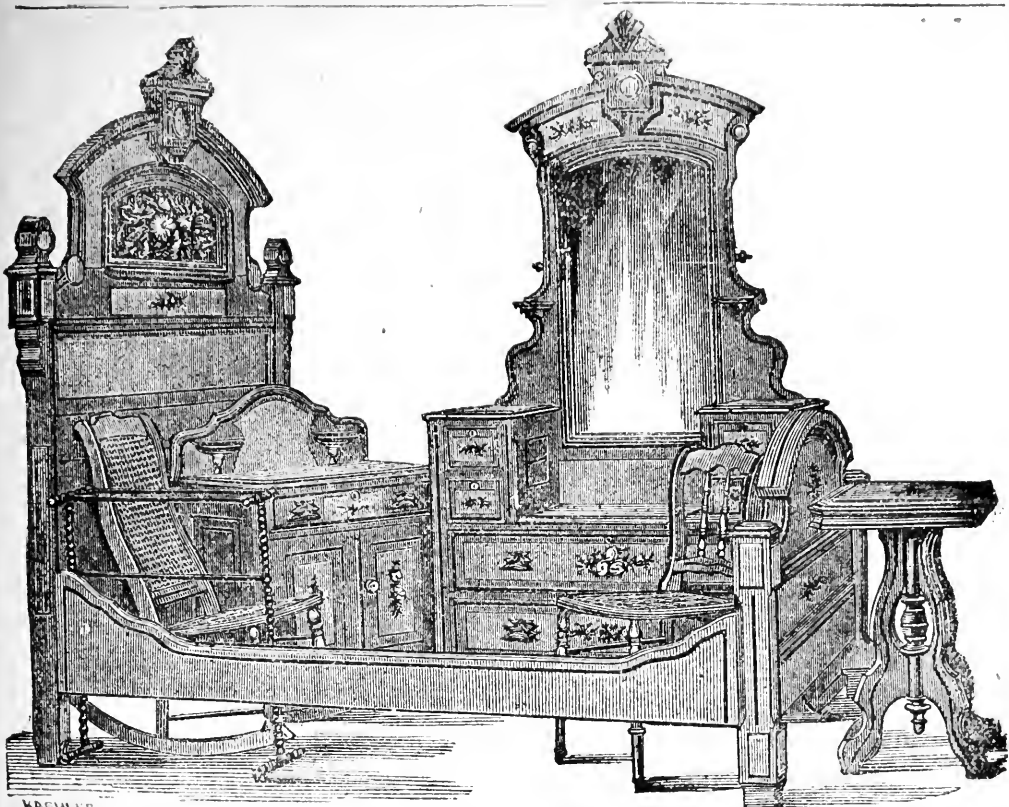

This beautiful Pedestal designed for Rodgers' Statuary Groups, costs $12.00. Others much less in price.

The upper illustration shows the manner of opening the lounge. Its perfection as a bed, the ease with which it is opened and closed, its beauty and simplicity of motion, commands for it a ready sale. Price, from $20.00 to $45.00.

This suit consists of seven pieces, viz: Tete-a-tete, Arm Chair, Reception Chair and four Side Chairs. It is made from seasoned Walnut, carefully selected. The upholstering is done only by adult mechanics. Its price, in Hair Cloth or Reps is $28.00.

Man glories in his strength ; woman glories in her hair ; yet neither is silent even in the possession of both.

These Enameled Suits are finished in durable colors; surface hard and brilliant. Material thoroughly seasoned. Warranted in every respect. Price, $30.00 for this suit. I have added some very handsome Japanese designs to my already extensive assortment of enameled furniture.

This Cottage Suit in any color, well finished for $15 at MASON'S Myrtle Avenue, corner Bridge Street. It will amply repay you to call before purchasing elsewhere.

One word about the Clocks, to which a few illustrations in this book refer. They are made for my establishment, by the celebrated Ansonia Clock Co., and are guaranteed to me in every respect, which guarantee I extend to my customers. They are perfect timekeepers and models in art. The amount of money, time and patience expended by the Company to bring this industry to its present perfection, not only excites our wonder, but calls for our gratitude ; for we are enabled at a very small outlay to place on our mantelpiece an accurate time-keeper and a beautiful ornament.

AN ANECDOTE OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

I never was so much impressed with the sense of my own homeliness as one day, many years ago, when I consulted the looking-glass about some minor details of my toilet. I was so taken back that I vowed that the first man I met who was homelier than myself, I would shoot him; with this pious resolve I sailed forth with a double barreled shot-gun. I met Sam—, and feeling confident he was the man; "Sam," I said "kneel down." "What for, Abe?" I told him of my resolve; "and do you really think, Abe," said Sam, "that I am homelier than yourself?" "I do, Sam; then, with a look of settled resignation on his countenance, he said, "shoot me, Abe."

A young New York married man traveling in Kansas recently received the dispatch, "Return immediately; you are a father." On the eve of his return his lady friends determined to play a joke on him. They procured from the neighborhood three other babies, placed all four in a row on a bed in an adjoining apartment, and covered them up. When he arrived he embraced his wife in great delight, and was then led forth to behold his first-born. When the cover was raised, an indescribable look of surprise overspread his countenance, and he exclaimed: "Great heavens! Did any of them get away?"

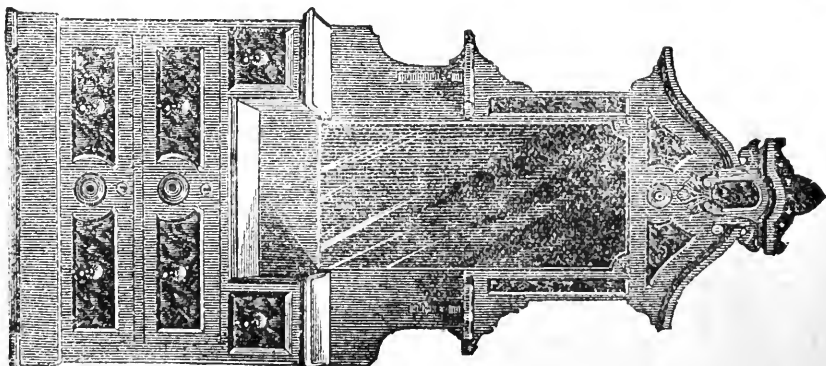

Truth is tough and will not break like a bubble at a touch; nay, you may kick it about all day like a foot ball, and it will be round and full in the evening. Does not Mr. Bryant say that "Truth gets well if she is run over by a locomotive, when error dies of lockjaw if she scratches her finger?"
